

Mission

To improve the health of our local, national and global communities through excellence in teaching, research, service and engagement.

Vision

Operating as an integral part of the University of Auckland, the Faculty of Medical and Health Sciences will:

- produce diverse graduates who achieve excellence in their chosen fields and lead the improvement of health outcomes in New Zealand and abroad;
- be an acknowledged equal of our peer institutions in the quality, quantity and impact of our research, and a world leader in key areas of research;
- influence and advance positive change in the faculty, University and broader community, through staff participation in service and leadership within and beyond the University;
- reduce inequities in education and health through access to our programmes, our curriculum, our research, and our commitment to the principles of the Treaty of Waitangi; and
- be a faculty that, through reputation, attracts high quality international students seeking undergraduate or postgraduate degrees.

To achieve this vision, we need to ensure we have the following:

- exceptional people doing exceptional work;
- a high quality representative student body;
- excellent teaching and learning;
- a commitment to reducing inequities;
- excellent research performance;
- an international outlook;
- meaningful engagement with society;
- mutually beneficial relationships with external stakeholders; and
- effective and efficient operations.
